COVID-19 and Work Study Update
The Department of Education has released guidance to schools regarding whether students can continue to submit timesheets for scheduled hours in the event that a school does not close but moves all classes to an online format. They CAN!
According to the Department of Education, the student can be paid for the Federal Work Study (or Montana Work Study) hours he, she, or they were scheduled to work for the spring semester. Per ED, the school can have the student submit a timesheet for the hours he or she was scheduled to work and pay Work Study wages based on that.
It is important that students do NOT submit timesheets for hours in excess of their normally scheduled hours. If a student worker does not have scheduled hours, students can be paid at the average number of hours the student has worked so far this spring term.

EMERGENCY PANTRY
What does the Yellowjacket Emergency Pantry offer?
The Yellowjacket Emergency Pantry currently provides food, hygiene, and school supplies to all students at Montana State University Billings. We also work as advocates to connect students to additional student support services.
Who can use the Yellowjacket Emergency Pantry?
Any student enrolled at Montana State University Billings, can use the Yellowjacket Emergency Pantry. Students can use the pantry up to three times per semester. However, if students require additional support, we can make arrangements on a case by case basis.

CRISIS FUND
The Montana State University Billings’ Student Crisis fund has been established to help currently enrolled students on the path to academic success during a personal and unexpected crisis or hardship. Whether they need to replace personal belongings after a devastating fire, cannot afford necessary prescriptions, or are unable to pay for an emergency medical procedure, the fund provides financial assistance. Through this fund, students discover the very essence of the Yellowjacket community. We provide care and support beyond counseling and community.
