The United Nations has prepared a Guide for Indigenous Peoples which includes 12 leaflets, discussing a broad range of topics on indigenous peoples, human rights and international law. We have included Leaflet 2: Indigenous Peoples, the UN and Human Rights, Leaflet 4: Human Treaty Bodies and Indigenous Peoples, and Leaflet 6: The Permanent Forum on Indigenous Issues.

Please note that these leaflets were produced by the UN Office of High Commissioner for Human Rights prior to various important organizational changes within the UN system. For example, the Human Rights Commission was recently replaced by the Human Rights Council and the mandate for the Working Group on the Draft Declaration has expired. As well, the future mandate of other subsidiary UN bodies, particularly the Sub-Commission on Promotion and Protection of Human Rights and the Working Group on Indigenous Peoples, are under review and will likely be modified by the new Human Rights Council in the near future. As such, references in the leaflets to the Human Rights Commission, the Working Group on the Draft Declaration, the Sub-Commission, and the Working Group on Indigenous Peoples are no longer current.
