WORKSHOP OVERVIEW

This presentation will discuss applying RTI for students with behavioral and emotional difficulties. Key concepts will be examined, including:

- Structuring building-wide supports or tiers
- Using timely, research-based interventions and practices
- Examining the role of functional behavioral assessments
- Applying data-based decision making
- Using RTI for identifying students with behavioral/emotional disabilities

Practical suggestions for getting started will be outlined.

ABOUT THE PRESENTER

Wayne Callender is a regional education coordinator with the Center on Teaching and Learning at the University of Oregon and the past coordinator of the Results-Based Model Project for the state of Idaho. For eleven years Wayne worked with K-12 schools as well as conducted professional development with educators implementing a Response to Intervention (RTI) problem solving approach as a means of improving outcomes for students with and without disabilities. He currently serves as a consultant to schools in several states. He has presented at national conferences and is a certified K-12 building and district administrator as well as a special education director.
