

Overview

This training is intended for schools that have previously completed RTI training but would like to expand their capacity by having additional staff trained or to update previous training. Capacity training is a great way to increase staff buy-in, renew commitment, and update your RTI process with the latest information and tools.

Audience

Educators from schools that already have an established RTI team.

About the Presenter

Wayne Callender is a regional education coordinator with the Center on Teaching and Learning at the University of Oregon and the past coordinator of the Results-Based Model Project for the state of Idaho. For eleven years Wayne worked with K-12 schools as well as conducted professional development with educators implementing a Response to Intervention (RTI) problem solving approach as a means of improving outcomes for students with and without disabilities. He currently serves as a consultant to schools in several states. He has presented at national conferences and is a certified K-12 building and district administrator as well as a special education director.

Objectives

Learn RTI principles and concepts:

- Learn a school-wide approach to RTI—three-tiers of instructional support
- Create an assessment plan for screening, diagnostics, and progress monitoring
- Learn to use problem-solving at the systems and student levels
- Understand keys to effective intervention and ways to maximize student outcomes

Credits

Twelve OPI Renewal Units available.
