MUSIC

Overview of the Music program:

The MSU Billings Department of Music stresses high standards of performance, a strong theoretical background, a broad exposure to music history, opportunities in pedagogy, and a significant encounter with other academic disciplines. The Department offers three different degree programs: Music Performance, Music Commercial, and Music Teaching Licensure.

What makes your program unique?

A degree in music at Montana State University Billings not only exposes students to a strong academic education, personal application, and performance but also provides rich opportunities for exposure to renowned musicians and performances on and off-campus.

Our instructors are prominent members of Billings' musical and performing community. They bring to the classroom years of experience and expose their students to the local talents in song, dance, and various cultures. They also encourage that students also get out and join Billings' vibrant music and arts community.

What students like most about the Music program:

*The faculty at MSUB are outstanding. They really care about their students and find many ways to get them playing in the lively Billings music scene.” — Mady Johnson, Clarinet Performance

“I transferred here because it is a safe place to learn and try new things” — Hazel Bullis, Trombone Performance/Commercial Music

“It feels great to get involved in the ever-growing music program at MSUB, knowing that I will get to grow as a musician. The faculty and students are all passionate and welcoming, which helps foster the growth of the culture of excellence in the music department.” — Alex Bush, Electric Bass Performance.
